The above lines are a complete epitome of the glorious history sought to be commemorated at the Guilford Battle Ground in a Colonial Monument costing $1000. It is gratifying to be able to announce that of this amount $640 have been subscribed. Many persons said when this movement was begun that it was a vain undertaking, that the money could not be raised. But the responses have been such as to warrant the belief that the monument will be on the ground before the coming annual celebration. The remaining sum must be raised quickly that the order may be placed. The list is now open for donations of any size, and all will be appreciated and given credit for. The amount ought to be completed next week. The list now stands:

Neil Ellington, President of the Greensboro National Bank.....	$ 50 00
J. A. Odell, Odell Hardware Company.....	50
R. F. Dalton, Esq., Snow Lumber Company, High Point.....	25

To the Editor of the Telegram:

In a very feeling and very remarkable prayer offered at Guilford Battle Ground the lamented Dr. Thomas Pritchard most properly dubbed that "The Mecca of North Carolina's Patriotism." This name, because of its manifest propriety, clings to the spot yet and ever will. Here are monuments, cenotaphs and statues—16 in number—over the bodies of the statesmen and signers of the Declaration of Independence, William Hooper and John Penn, and over General Jethro Sumner and over to the memory of Colonels "Hal" Dixon and Arthur Forbis, the gallant Stuart of the British forces, and Howard and Gurby of the Maryland line, and the brave, dead Delawareans, and Daves and Winston and Tate and Gillies, Light Horse Harry Lee's unfortunate little bugler boy, and others. The memorials with their excellent bronze inscriptions attest our reverence for and appreciation of our Revolutionary heroes, as that word Revolutionary is usually understood and accepted.

But the heroes who preceded these and opened the ball five years before 1776, are not commemorated. These last named made for North Carolina and America as bright a page as their histories contain.

Virginia and Massachusetts were the most populous and powerful of the colonies at that period and North Carolina ranked third in the list—hence her ability and willingness to send strong assistance to both General Washington in the North and Southward also to South Carolina and Georgia as she did. In Virginia and Massachusetts leading men, it is said, were under the necessity of inciting and arousing the mass of their people to the assistance of British tyranny. But in North Carolina the people led their leaders. We have at Guilford in imperishable metal the epauletted soldier and gown-clad statesman and orator. This is well and simply as it should be. But now let us also have the pioneer of American liberty—the North Carolina militiaman, the frontiersman, without uniform, save his home-made hunting shirt, his powder horn, buck rifle, knife and slouch hat. These were the men from central and western North Carolina—some of them plain and some of them very intelligent people—who fought the first battle of the Revolutionary war on May

IN U. S. SUPREME COURT.

The City of Greensboro Will Have a Case in the Highest Tribunal in the Land.

Greensboro will go into the Supreme Court of the United States. Hon. Chas. M. Stedman, who has from the beginning represented The Chicago Portrait Company, whose agents were arrested in this city on two occasions, has sued out a writ of error in the case against E. M. Caldwell, which takes the case to the United States Supreme Court.

The history of the cases are interesting, especially since this new action. About two years ago a salesman for this same company, who was selling pictures, was arrested on a charge of peddling without license. The man, R. J. Williams, was adjudged guilty in the Mayor's court, and a fight was begun which will be ended in the highest court of the land. The Mayor's decision was confirmed by the Superior Court, and then carried to the Supreme Court of the State, where it was reversed.

When this case failed, it will be recalled that the City Aldermen, desiring to reach this class of salesmen, passed another ordinance imposing a tax upon selling and delivering pictures and frames.

E. M. Caldwell, another agent of the same company was arrested two or three months ago and fined for violating this ordinance. This case also went up to the Supreme Court of the State, where it was affirmed, with Chief Justice Faircloth and Judge Clarke dissenting. Major Stedman has maintained that the city ordinance is contrary to the constitution of the United States in that it is an interference with inter-state commerce. Messrs. Scales & Scales represent the city in the fight.

THE ALDERMEN.

The Question of Allowing Liquor to be Sold on Davie Street.

All members were present except Love and Scott at the regular session of the Board of Aldermen last night. The special committee which went to Raleigh and other points gathering information relative to water and light plants having returned, made a verbal report.

On motion of Alderman Denny the Board was instructed to make a special contract to the lowest bidder to number the houses of the city.

The request of the West End Hose Company for 200 feet of hose and also for the placing of a tapper in the house of its secretary, J. H. Prince, on motion of Joyner, was granted, subject to the approval of the Chief of the fire department and Firemen's Committee, and the Clerk was ordered to make purchase.

Mr. J. T. Abbott, from the Steamer Company, asked that the city feed an additional horse for that company, which was granted.

J. J. Laughlin and S. J. McCauley were recommended for license to sell liquor.

The application of R. S. Small to sell liquor at 117 South Davie, having come up for action, Alderman Boyd moved that no retail liquor license be granted for Davie street. The motion was lost. Alderman Joyner moved that the consideration of the question of selling whiskey on Davie street and the application in question be deferred for the present, and that the Chief of Police and the Mayor make investigation and make a report on the application.

Sergeant moved that the portion of the ordinance restricting bars to within not less than 250 feet of the court house be repealed. The motion was lost.

Mr. Lee Promoted.

Mr. C. W. Lee, who was formerly chief engineer here, and who a short while ago accepted a position with the Seaboard Railway in Florida, has been promoted to the position of master mechanic of Richmond district with headquarters at Raleigh, N. C. His territory will extend from Richmond, Va., to Columbia, S. C. This is only a fair recognition of Mr. Lee's ability as a railroad man, and both his North Carolina and Virginia friends are glad to know of this deserving and worthy promotion.

FOUR NEW SUPERIOR COURTS

STATE CERTAIN TO HAVE SIXTEEN DISTRICTS.

The House Today Passed the Measure and the Senate Would Have Done so but on Request Let it go Over Till Monday.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Feb. 9.—North Carolina will no doubt have sixteen Superior Court districts. The bill creating them passed the House today by a vote of 55 to 22, after all amendments and dilatory motions had been voted down.

The House defeated the bill requiring discharged convicts to be put on the train with tickets for their home. Practically all the western members voted against it.

In the Senate.

A bill was introduced in the Senate to prevent teachers from the State Normal and Industrial College teaching in the public schools without having stood examinations.

The Senate took up the House bill establishing sixteen judicial districts and was on the point of passing it, when Senator Aycock asked that it go over till Monday. His request was granted.

The bill fixing the apportionment of representation was passed as reported by the committee. A great effort was made to retain two representatives for New Hanover, but it failed.

DEMANDS UPON CUBA.

Secretary Root Says the War Department Has Demanded Three Things.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Secretary Root today admitted that the war department had made three demands of the constitutional convention of Cuba. First, the right to control by military authority the whole island until a native government is formed which the United States approves; second, the right to intervene at any time to prevent the island's coming under the domination of any foreign power; third, coaling stations at Havana, Cienfuegos and Santiago.

Found Dead.

Rear Admiral Rearick, of the United States Navy, retired, was found dead in bed this morning at his home. He was sixty three years old in apparently good health.

THREATS OF KIDNAPPERS.

A Wealthy Philadelphian Warned That His Sons' Eyes Would be Put Out.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Philadelphia, Feb. 9.—A letter has been addressed to Owain G. Henry, of this city, which threatened that unless he sent fifteen thousand dollars to the writer, his two sons would be kidnapped and their eyes put out. The letter was left with a druggist to deliver to Henry, and the druggist was instructed to wind up his own affairs and get out of town by next Wednesday. The letter was to be left in the crevice of the wall surrounding the birthplace of Charlie Ross.

Bad Weather in New York.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 9.—A blizzard is raging in western New York today. This city is experiencing the worst snow storm of the winter. The street car traffic is delayed in all parts of the city. Snow ploughs are barely able to cope with the storm. The weather is intensely cold, with considerable wind.

One of the common remarks of travelers is that the modern business buildings of Greensboro have so real a city look. The handsome new front of the Greensboro Loan and Trust Company building will add to this effect, with its handsome columns just now gone up.

A GIGANTIC STEEL COMBINE.

MORGAN'S BIG DEAL FOR THE CARNEGIE COMPANY.

Mr. Carnegie is to Receive $1,500 for Every $1,000 of His Stock, and to Receive Part Cash and Part in Bonds.

New York, Feb. 8.—The new developments in connection with the negotiations touching the transfer of the control of the Carnegie Steel Company to J. Pierpont Morgan and his associates today, were first, that Mr. Carnegie is to receive $1,500 for each $1,000 share of his stock; second, that minority holders who desire to sell will receive the same terms as those given to Mr. Carnegie; third, that the present stage of the negotiations contemplates the formation of a new corporation whose bonds will pay a large part in the price to be paid Mr. Carnegie, and fourth, the first public announcement in connection with the pending negotiations of an official character consisting of a statement by E. H. Gary, president of the Federal Steel Company, confirming the news that J. Pierpont Morgan is planning the acquisition of the properties of some of the largest iron and steel companies of this country.

The statement by Judge Gary apparently confirms the general impression that all the Morgan companies are actively interested in the transaction, and while nothing was said as to the American Steel & Wire Company, the fact that counsel for that company attended conferences between President Gary and Mr. Morgan seems to leave little doubt that the negotiations under way include the steel and wire consolidation. Incidentally interesting developments may occur at the annual meeting of the corporation on February 19. The Moore Companies probably will be disposed to work in harmony with the Morgan interests. The Pennsylvania Steel Company may be included in the "community of ownership" plans. If, as now seems certain, Mr. Carnegie is to receive $1,500 for each share of $1,000 of his stock, the transfers in his case alone will be equivalent of nearly $130,000,000 inasmuch as the great steel magnate's holdings at present amount to $86,000,000. If as seems probable the minority holders are to be looked after by Mr. Morgan's syndicate, the financing will involve the equivalent of $140,000,000.

No surprise was expressed in financial circles today when it became known that the financial plan, contemplated either the re-organization on a greatly enlarged capital basis of one of the existing steel companies to the formation of an entirely new corporation to hold the controlling stock of the various component companies, and especially the stock acquired by the Carnegie Company, all of such stock to constitute the collateral of the new bonds which shall be issued to Mr. Carnegie and to such other of the present Carnegie Company stockholders as may wish to sell out with him. It may be stated on what is practically official authority that the full details of the proposed scheme of financing the big transfer had not been completed up to a late hour this afternoon, but the general outlines of the plan it is stated do contemplate either the issue of bonds or a system of notes guaranteed in the manner already described.

It was proposed during the negotiations today that a plan of payment might be agreed upon whereby Mr. Carnegie should receive a certain amount of cash, and the balance in notes of the underwriting syndicate coming due at specified dates, so that the transaction could be spread over a considerable period of time, thus overcoming the objection of a possible stringency in the money market. These notes were to be secured by the deposits in trust of the Carnegie stock as collateral. This arrangement, however, did not meet Mr. Carnegie's objection to parting with personal control of the company until he had received full payment. Whatever the exact shape that the financial transactions might take, there is little doubt whatever that it represents the determination of a battle royal between modern financial giants.

STREET CORNER OBSERVATIONS

From an exchange the street corner artist gets this bit of corn dialogue. "Go 'way! 'ombeah; I ain't got no time fur common liggers lack you. I see er milyunair, I is." "Yes, you is er milyunair: You's got er milyunair holes in dem rags."

A Greensboro gentleman met a traveling man on the train yesterday as each of them was coming out of Winston. The Greensboro man thought of course that the traveler was coming to Greensboro and made a remark to that effect, but was surprised to learn that such was not the case. He asked if this was not good territory for the traveler's house. "Oh, yes," the latter replied, "but we have special men to work the larger towns," was the reply. "All I've got to say about that," replied the Greensboro man, "is that you had better not make such a remark as that while in Winston if you expect to any business."

"Durn them lawyers, don't they tear a man up?" said a man who had passed the ordeal of the witness stand. "They wound me all up and mixed me till I didn't know what I was talking about, but skoo, I was as cool as a cucumber compared to an old man I saw. He got shook up so that when he got through he couldn't have told his own name. When he got kinder straight again he made but one remark, which was to the effect that before he'd go up there again somebody would have to go through the exercise of a long foot race."

Conductor Wreen of the Seaboard Air Line, says Chairity and Children, a capital fellow and fond of a joke, is responsible for the following: Two dignified colored preachers boarded his train, who were strangers to each other. One of them looking over the rim of his brass spectacles remarked to the other: "What might be your entitlement?" "My application, sah, is William Jones." "Thank you fur de discrepancy."

Down in Charlotte they are having a tussle with the gamblers, who are about to take the city. Dr. Chrietzeberg is firing at the progressive euche players and Dr. Staggs is firing at the gamblers in general and at the mayor in particular, and the mayor is alternately backing water and firing at the saloons. His firing is in a scattering kind of way which indicates that he is relying on the noise rather than the shot for effect. The News says that new circulars on the railroad read: "Special trains for the pure in heart guaranteed not to stop in Charlotte, but go straight through to the land where a gambling den and progressive euche parties are unknown."

The poet laureate of Greensboro, 'Squire Wolfe, dropped into The Telegram office this morning to invite the poetry editor to come to see his new office in the Federal building as soon as he gets it ready for dispensing justice a la United States Commissioner. Noticing the picture of Dr. Caruthers on the wall, as the grim old countenance looks out from under the great old stove-pipe hat, every moment in danger of submergence by that huge piece of headgear. The sight of the picture put 'Squire Wolfe into a reminiscent mood and he began to talk about the trips he used to take on the stage between here and Raleigh. It was during these trips that he learned to love the music of the stage horn, upon which he has composed a most beautiful ode. The last time, said the 'Squire, that he had seen Dr. Caruthers he had on that very same hat shown in the picture. It was on a trip from Raleigh. The passengers in the coach were Dr. Caruthers, Hugh Waddell, Dr. William Holt, and the 'Squire.

all long since departed except the latter, who yet remains to celebrate in song the sentiments and customs of those fine old days.

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION.

Mother Dies in Bed With Child, Father Dying and Two Children Very Ill.

Danville Register.

A case of distress such as is rarely met with was told a reporter for the Register last night, and it would seem that neglect was evident somewhere that such a thing should happen in a civilized community.

Mrs. Mary Coleman, wife of Mr. Coleman, was found dead yesterday morning by her child, which slept with her through the night.

There were five in the family, the father, mother and three children and they lived in a small house some three miles from Danville, in the county, and near the river. Of the five, four have been and three are down now sick with typhoid fever, the fourth, the mother, has gone over the great divide, and it is expected that the father will have gone the same road ere morning light today, while the two children are too helpless to help themselves, and on the one remaining child devolves the care of those who are likely to pass to eternity unless assistance is given them. The mother was buried yesterday afternoon in the family burial plot.

Here appears a chance for the Inasmuch or Whatsoever people.

ROBBERY IN PUBLIC ROAD.High-Handed Crime Committed Not Far From Durham.

Raleigh Post.

Durham, N. C., Feb. 8.—One of the boldest highway robberies ever committed in the county took place about two and one-half miles from Durham this morning between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock. Two unknown negroes held up and robbed Mr. H. L. Waller, a well-to-do farmer of Granville county, of a little more than two hundred and fifty dollars.

Mr. Waller was on his way here and had the money in his pocket to pay off a note held by a Durham gentleman. He was driving along not thinking of danger, when two negro men stepped from the side of the road. One stopped the horse and the other went to the side of the buggy and said: "Give us your money or your life." Mr. Waller replied that he had no money, when the man replied that he was a liar and cut at him. A long cut was made in his coat and overcoat, and but for the protection afforded by a small account book which he had on the inside of his coat pocket, and in which was two hundred and fifty dollars in bills, he would have been killed, as the blow was evidently intended for his heart.

At the same time the other negro ran around to the other side of the buggy and pressed a pistol to his head. Mr. Waller was quickly jerked from his buggy, and it was at this stage of the fight he told them to take his money but save his life. In a very short while the money was in the possession of the negroes and they stepped into the woods and were gone.

The victim came on to Durham and the matter was immediately reported to the officers. Sheriff Markham and a posse have been after the robbers, but at this time they have not been captured. The indignation on account of the robbery is very great, and while our people are law-abiding the men would not fare very well if caught.

The negroes are described as follows: The one who did the cutting was a ginger-cake colored negro, about 5 feet 5 or 6 inches in height and weighs about 150 pounds. The other was a very tall, coal black negro. He is somewhere in the neighborhood of 6 feet high and weighs about 180 pounds. Every effort is being made to catch the bold highwaymen.

Not Prepared For It.

Salisbury Truth-Index.

For the first time since the resolutions of impeachment were introduced into the Legislature, we feel like expressing a public opinion upon the matter. The Greensboro Telegram has ably stated the case. * * * The people—well, they have been so little hurt over the matter, that they don't know what crime these two judges have committed against them. This is a serious matter, one which is fraught with terrible responsibilities and consequences. The people are not prepared for it; they have not heard of the misconduct for which these men are to be tried. These men may have acted wrongly, we are sure they did; but, do their offenses merit impeachment? From the opinions of dissenting lawyers, papers and politicians we believe not.

WINE OF CARDUI

Woman's Crowning Virtue.

BELTON, Mo., July 27.
For years I suffered terrible pains every month and my doctor told me I could not be cured except by an operation. I felt I could not submit to that and was so despondent I had given up all hopes of a cure. My husband insisted on my trying Wine of Cardui and at last thank God I did try it. Last month I did not have a pain, and did all my work, which I had not done in seven years.

MRS. MINNIE LITTLE.

Wine of Cardui

Modesty is the crowning virtue of American women. It is the trait that all mankind admires. A modest woman is the most pleasing of all created things. Because of this becoming virtue thousands of women prefer to suffer untold miseries rather than confide their troubles to a physician, and to even think of submitting to an examination is revolting. They can't get their own consent to an operation. Wine of Cardui permits sensitive women to retain their modesty. With it they can cure "female troubles" in the quiet of their own rooms. If special treatment is required they can write to the Advisory Department of the Chattanooga Medicine Co., and their letters will be promptly answered by women trained in the cure of womanly weaknesses and irregularities. There should be no hesitation. Delayed treatment means a chronic condition. The longer postponed the harder to cure.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9

NEXT WEEK.

As will be seen elsewhere, $640 have been subscribed on the $1,000 for the purpose of erecting a Colonial Monument. Our readers understand fully the object of this monument. It is beyond all question a laudable purpose, and one that will reflect great credit upon Greensboro. There ought not to be any further delay about raising the money. While the subscriptions have seemed to come in slow, they have afforded much gratification to the friends of the cause, and the monument has been an assured success for some time. But the subscriptions should be closed up at once so that the orders may be placed, and preparations be begun for the unveiling, which is certain to be one of the biggest occasions ever witnessed in this section. Therefore, we ask that the people of the city send in their subscriptions at once. The amount ought to be finished out next week. Subscriptions of any size will be welcomed and acknowledged.

The tremendous amount of capital involved in the huge steel deal in which the Carnegie and all other companies of the country is consolidated is something to stagger thought. We have never taken a doctrinaire position regarding great combinations of capital, called trusts, holding rather that they were a new experience for this country, and as such to be studied and understood. But certainly such gigantic efforts as those of the steel combine is enough to give us all pause, and make us wonder what will happen by and by.

A Washington telegram printed in this paper today says that Secretary Root admits that the War Department has demanded the recognition of three very important rights by the Cuban constitutional convention. This is a demand of eminent wisdom and justice, it appears to us.

THE ALAMANCE, MAY 16, 1771

16th, 1771. These were the men whose presence in large force drove General McDonald from Cross Creek in February, 1776. They drove McDonald to Moore's Creek where their gallant comrades from the east met and utterly destroyed him and his command. This victory of North Carolinians over the British General and his command was the first victory of the Revolutionary war. It was overwhelming and complete. No victory of the war, perhaps, was more replete with advantage to the Whig cause, moral and material, than the battle of Moore's Creek bridge.

Does not our sense of right and duty and every impulse of commendable and ennobling pride demand that the memory of these men be cherished, preserved and proclaimed? Certain it is, that without a stone to them Guilford's memorial park will remain sadly incomplete, telling but half the State's noble story.

Last week $550 of the $1,000 required for the erection, at Guilford Battle Ground, of the proposed colonial column, had been subscribed. William Love, Esq., a leading lumber man of this city, and ever zealous of the State's fair name and fame, figured it out that 18 subscribers at $25 each would make the $450, and announced himself as one of the eighteen. Following Mr. Love's noble lead John M. Dick, Esq., proprietor of the excellent steam laundry on West Market street, and one other, gave in their names, leaving 15 of the 18 yet remaining. It is suggested that these and other subscriber of a like amount, claim a share of stock in the Battle Ground Company, as they are entitled to do. This records our names upon an honorable roll and entitles to a vote in the management of the park. Parties unwilling or unable to give more than $5 or $10, are urged to do so, when these several smaller amounts will be grouped into 25s and counted as such. Upon failure to raise the full amount, the sums opposite their names will stand as the subscriptions of the respective individuals donating.

Orders for the stone and tablets ought to be placed at once, as by giving the manufacturers full time we get finer work at the same or less price, which of course cannot and will not be done until payment for the same is subscribed and thereby assured. Leave your name and amount subscribed with the Telegram, Record or Patriot, when they will be duly acknowledged, or with the undersigned.

Yours truly,

JOSEPH M. MOREHEAD.

The Public Printing.

Raleigh Post.

Four bids were submitted yesterday for the public printing contract for the next two years.

The bids were sealed and have not yet been opened. The joint Committee on Public Printing, which received the bids, went into executive session as soon as they were submitted. It was announced that the committee will have its next meeting Wednesday afternoon.

The bids were submitted yesterday by attorneys representing printing firms as follows:

J. N. Holding, for Edwards and Broughton and E. M. Uzzel, of this city.

F. I. Osborne, for the Queen City Printing Company of Charlotte.

Col. J. W. Hinsdale, for Nash Bros. of Goldsboro.

A. J. Fields, for Barnes Bros. of this city.

The committee decided that the resolution passed two years ago was not binding upon the committee of this session. This resolution recommended that the State printing should be given to the lowest bidder. Speaking on this point, Mr. Winston of Bertie said he would not commit himself on the policy of awarding the contract to the lowest bidder; that there were other considerations, such as location, reliability of parties, party services, etc. The Populists gave the contract to the lowest bidder and entailed a lawsuit upon the State to the amount of ten or fifteen thousand dollars. Everything being equal, he, as well as other members of the committee, favored awarding the contract to the lowest bidder.

Mr. Broughton, speaking in behalf of the present contractors, explained wherein the State had saved $152 in the printing of the Senate Journal of the session of 1899, as against the cost of the printing of the Senate Journal for the session of 1897, when awarded by the fusionists to the so-called "low-bidder." He showed wherein a party could take the contract at unreasonably low rates and make up on the job work, which could not be specified in the contract.

A Pointer to be Thought of.

Concord Standard.

In the Greensboro Telegram's street corner observations attention is called to the fact that in cold windy weather people would do a great kindness to their horses if they would always hitch them so that they can get their heads from the wind. Probably the fewest number of people ever thought of it, while almost every one has observed that a horse will turn his head away from a cold wind if he can. It is a pointer that should not be lost sight of.

HIS LIFE WAS SAVED.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with typhoid fever that ran into pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all throat and lung trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug

AMERICAN FORESTRY

Splendid Exhibit Planned for the Buffalo Exposition.

Interesting Features of the Work Performed by the Government—Intended as a Lesson for the People.

Forestry will receive special attention at the Pan-American exposition to be held in Buffalo next year. The exhibit will contain much that is interesting and beneficial to the general public, a description of which will illustrate the great scope and broad lines upon which the exposition is founded.

The propagation, care and preservation of forests has received a great deal of attention from the United States government of late years. The United States division of forestry under Gifford Pinchot has made an unusually generous offer to all farmers or persons wishing to improve forests or plant wood lots. An expert will be sent upon application, at the expense of the government, who will make an examination of the soil, climatic and atmospheric conditions, after which he draws up a plan for planting. He also instructs the farmer and his neighbors so far as possible in the elements of forestry. In the main this takes up the question of the proper kinds to plant in a particular soil and locality, the manner of planting and proper care of the trees until they attain maturity, says the official bulletin.

Particular attention has been given to the treeless regions of the middle west, especially to parts of Kansas. Farmers throughout that section recognize the value of wood lots as a source of supply for fence posts and fuel, as well as the benefits of protection from storms which is afforded by tree belts, when grown for wind breaks.

The necessity has been brought home to them by deprivation, accentuated in many cases by having once lived in one of the eastern states, when, in their younger days, timber was considered a nuisance to be gotten rid of with the least possible delay and expense. They do not, however, appreciate the scientific advantages to the country at large, of proper forest influence, which results in protection against floods in spring and droughts in summer. The exhibit will take up the broad question of forest preservation, embracing the great national benefit to be bequeathed to future generations, by a moistened atmosphere, which in turn will provide a regular, copious rainfall.

One of the most interesting features will be an illustration of the manner in which the mat of fallen leaves which covers the ground in the forest absorbs the rain as it falls, instead of permitting it to course down the hillside, to join the brook which helps to swell the river to overflowing.

Distribution of moisture will be made plain, as the work is done in the great chemical laboratory of nature: How the wet surface of leaves operates as an air tight covering to prevent undue evaporation, while the myriads of tiny tree rootlets take up the water as it slowly percolates through this covering into the soil, from whence it is raised by a mysterious capillary force, through the trunk and branches to the leaves where it is given off in the form of vapor through transpiration, to be once more precipitated to the earth in the shower or dew that waters the growing crop.

The great importance of forest preservation in the United States is not appreciated by the general public. That the sentiment is growing is exemplified in the creation of forestry departments in our great universities.

For more than a century the natural forests have been cut and destroyed until in many parts of the country the people are brought face to face with one of the greatest problems that ever confronted them. This problem, in its intricacies, involves not only the supply of building material, pulp wood for the manufacture of the largest amount of paper required by any country and the millions of other articles, both large and small, that are manufactured or derived from wood, but it includes the question of soil fertility, upon which depends both individual and national existence.

India's famine is a terrible illustration of the great danger that confronts a people whose lands are stripped of their natural forest growth. The danger may be exaggerated and is probably remote, but the underlying principle is there.

The forestry exhibit at the Pan-American exposition will be housed in a building which of itself will be an interesting exhibit. With splendid natural resources to draw from, and the advanced knowledge of forestry as a help, it is the intention to make this the most interesting and practical forestry exhibit ever brought together.

What Kotelmann Saw

KOTELMANN is a man with whom I have no sympathy. He is, undoubtedly, a very clever fellow, but the uncanny expression of his face when he looks up is to me positively repulsive.

For all that, he is excellent company. I have spent many hours, many an evening, in his society, and must, in fairness, own that I have never found him wearisome or dull.

Not long ago I took a walk with him. As we sauntered through the stubble fields we discoursed of this and of that, and at last we got upon the topic of the latest murders which had been reported in the press.

Kotelmann, as we talked about these things, had the look that always makes my hair stand on end. We were discussing the question of circumstantial evidence and its value. "In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred," I remarked, "there is nothing else to be done but to convict the criminal upon circumstantial evidence. No man in his senses would perpetrate a murder in the presence of an eye-witness."

"Probably not," returned Kotelmann, slowly. "That kind of thing is usually done in private. It may be chance, however, that an eye-witness is present of whom the murderer has no cognizance."

After making this remark he walked by my side for awhile in silence, apparently deep in thought. Then he began again, in his characteristic fashion:

"One may travel all round the world and yet never witness a murder. I, however, have seen one."

"What—you—you have seen one?" I exclaimed, almost terrified. "Explain yourself, man! Was the murderer caught? Was he punished?"

"It was no 'he,' it was a 'she,'" said Kotelmann, with a laugh. "And as she was not caught it stands to reason she was not punished."

"Yet you—" I began.

My companion interrupted me. "I had nothing to do with it. My evidence was not called for nor required. The thing was accomplished in the neatest, most refined manner possible. If you like, I will tell you the whole story."

I pricked up my ears. "Four years ago I was spending my summer vacation at the little watering place of B—. This quiet, retired nest suited me well, and I stayed there for some time."

"In the house where I found a lodging there were already a number of other visitors—a fact which, to a sociable individual like myself, was in no wise distasteful."

"Among others I made a slight acquaintance with a family consisting of an old gentleman, his young wife and his daughter by a former marriage. The girl, a slim, delicate creature, apparently about 20 years of age, was blind. She could not be termed pretty, but her personality was indescribably attractive, gentle, and, I may say, pathetic. The wife was a beauty. She had a splendid figure and a pair of gray eyes not easily to be forgotten. I should judge her age to have been about 28. These people seemed to be in very easy circumstances and kept themselves as much as possible apart from the other visitors."

"I can boast, as you are aware, of some small gifts of observation. Although my acquaintance with this family was, as I have already stated, but a slight one, I yet took some interest in studying the different members which composed it. For, wherever I go I make it a rule to study all the new characters I meet. It was not long before I discovered three things concerning this trio. Firstly, that the old man was passionately in love with his wife, but had for his daughter neither eyes, ears nor heart; secondly, that the daughter had an almost idolatrous reverence for her father, but a secret dislike for her stepmother; thirdly, that the wife had a downright hatred for the other two."

"None of the other inmates of our villa, however, had any suspicion of this state of affairs; to the superficial observer these three persons appeared to be living together in perfect harmony."

"One morning the old gentleman did not appear, and in answer to inquiries his wife said that he was ill. In the course of the day a physician was summoned to him, and in the evening our host imparted to me in confidence the distressing fact that the old man had been attacked by typhus fever and lay now in a very precarious condition."

"I have no fear of infection, and when I told our host so I rose prodigiously in his estimation. I even attended the invalid and tried to cheer him. On one occasion, when only a hired nurse besides myself was present, he startled me by a fit of delirium, in which he implored me to save him from his wife. I did my utmost to pacify him and soon his mood changed and he began to speak of his wife in the most pathetic and endearing terms. Ten days after the beginning of the old gentleman's illness I chanced to encounter the doctor, who was just descending the staircase.

"Well," said I, "how fares it with your patient?"

"Oh," answered he, "the symptoms are very favorable. The crisis is over—or all but over. We know, of course, that he is an old man, and his constitution is weak—extremely weak. If he pulls through, as I trust he will, he will have his wife and daughter to thank for it—especially his daughter. The girl is a born nurse! He is asleep now and upon this sleep depends all."

If he awakes of himself in three or four hours' time, then, humanly speaking, he will be out of danger. Everything depends upon this sleep! I have impressed upon Herr K—, your landlord, the strict necessity of absolute quiet; he will give orders to the servants. Should the patient be frightened, startled out of his sleep, there will be a catastrophe. His nervous system is so greatly depressed that the slightest noise in his proximity—such, for instance, as the slamming of a door—would, in all probability, prove as fatal as a bullet shot into his head or heart. I have warned his wife. Sleep is now everything!"

"With these words the doctor put on his hat and departed. As I stood for a minute in the hall, thinking over what I had heard, Herr K— crept toward me on tiptoe."

"Listen, Herr Kotelmann," said he, in an undertone, "Fraulein von P—, who was so brave at first, because she has been a Sister of Mercy, left my house early this morning. She took herself off because she was afraid of catching the fever. Are you, then, somewhat superstitious?"

"I laughed."

"All right," said he, triumphantly. "I came to tell you that, if you please, you can have the fraulein's room. You will like its situation so much. It overlooks the whole valley, right away to the forest. You shall have it for the same price as you have been paying."

"I was delighted."

"Can I take possession at once?" I asked.

"This very moment," replied the landlord. "The room stands empty. Ah!" he added, "I forgot. It is next to the sick man's chamber. Will that make any difference to you?"

"I laughed and shook my head."

"Very good. The room has been cleaned lately, and is quite ready for your reception."

"I thanked him, and was ascending the stairs, when he softly called me back."

"Pardon me, Herr Kotelmann, I forgot again. The doctor has given orders that on no account must any sound be heard in the neighborhood of the sick room. He says that the old gentleman's life depends upon his sleep being undisturbed. Perhaps you will be so very kind as to defer moving your things until this evening."

"I expressed myself perfectly satisfied with this arrangement, but as I felt curious to behold my new habitation, especially the belated view from its windows, I—when the host had left me—stole with light steps along the corridor, opened the door with caution and entered noiselessly."

"The room had a friendly look and was large. The view was magnificent. After duly admiring this I threw an approving glance over walls and furniture. I have already alluded to the fact that I am an observer of things as well as of persons. I possess the true detective's eye."

"This being the case, I very speedily remarked a weak spot in one of the walls. It was a tiny slit or hole, such as would have been discoverable by most persons only after a whole day's confinement in the room. A small nail just above it apprised me that the late occupant, Fraulein von P—, must have been accustomed to hang some garment there."

"I approached this hole and peeped through it into the sick man's chamber. The room contained three human beings. On the bed lay an old man in deep sleep. Beside the bed knelt his blind daughter, with clasped hands and bowed head, her whole attitude expressive of intensely earnest prayer. Behind the daughter I saw the wife; she alone was moving. The hired nurse was not present, and had doubtless retired to enjoy a well-earned rest."

"In perfect silence, without producing the slightest sound, she was drawing along over the smooth surface of the wax-polished floor a small table, whose marble top was laden with quite a dozen medicine bottles and a number of glass vessels of various shapes and sizes."

"I did not at first comprehend her design. I knew very well that she had received the strictest injunctions to make no sound. But when I caught sight of her face! It was the face of a fiend! Never should I have believed it possible that human face could wear stamped upon it such a horrible expression of murderous hate. In an instant I understood."

"She was in the act of sliding the table into such a position that the least movement of the kneeling blind girl, absorbed in prayer for her beloved father, would be sufficient to overturn it with its fragile burden."

"I am, as you know, a somewhat cold-blooded fellow, but I can assure you that for the moment I was rigid with horror. I would have given the whole world to have been able to warn that poor child. But what could I do? A call from me might be as disastrous in its consequences as the catastrophe itself."

"The unhappy girl rose from her knees; with hands still clasped, she stood up. I saw the table reel and totter, and as, half swooning, I averted my eyes, I heard the thud of the table and awful crash of the breaking glass, followed immediately by an ear-piercing, blood-curdling scream."

Here Kotelmann made a pause. After a few moments of silence he said:

"Give me a light, friend."

When he had lighted his cigar I asked him:

"Did the old man die?"

"He was as dead as though he had been shot through the head," he replied, calmly.

We walked on in silence until I spoke again.

"Have you ever heard what has become of the woman?"

"Oh, yes. She has married again, but her daughter, poor thing, died about a year after her father."—Chicago Herald.

"RATS" NOT UNAVAILABLE.

A Complaining Caller Angered by Denial of United States Attorney's Office.

In the United States district attorney's office it has been decided that the word "rats," written in a letter, does not constitute an offense against the postal laws. But the man for whom the ruling was made is far from satisfied, and still threatens trouble, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. He called on Assistant District Attorney Oliver Pagin and presented a letter for examination. The envelope was addressed to him, he said, but he did not receive it direct from the carrier. Some other person obtained the letter first, and, after writing the word "rats" with a red pencil, had returned it to the mail box, with the additional mark: "Not here."

"Now, what do you think of that?" asked the stranger of Mr. Pagin.

"I do not see anything contrary to law in that word," was the answer.

"But don't you see it's insulting?"

"It may be regarded that way, but it is not immoral, and we can offer you no relief."

Mr. Pagin's caller picked up his hat, shook his fist in the face of the government attorney, and rushed out with the remark that he had little respect for the agents of a government which would not protect its citizens from insult.

Occupations Open to Women.

Within the last 15 years schools have sprung up all over the country for the education of women—education both of a general and a special nature—and now a girl chooses a vocation and fits herself for it with as much care as her brother gives to the preparation for his life work. But these, I believe, are in the main what may be called "new occupations." Fifty years ago there were but seven forms of employment open to women—teaching, needlework, work in cotton mills, keeping boarders, typesetting, bookbinding and household service. To-day there is not a profession or calling, from the ministry, medicine and law to bootblacking, barbering and street cleaning, in which women are not engaged and earning good wages.—Carolyn C. Mumford, in Woman's Home Companion.

THE ROADS TO WRINKLE TOWN.

Have you ever heard of the many roads that lead to Wrinkle Town? Or talked with the people who every day travel them up or down? There are numberless roads and wise folks tell

Of some, nor glad nor fair, Like wearisome paths to the mountain top—Storm-blighted, cold and bare. Now, some of these roads are winding, 'tis said, Some broad, like great highways; While others are steep and abruptly end Like showers on April days; And journeying over these desert tracks Through thousands old and young, The lowly of earth, the wealthy, the great, Are found the crowds among.

Name anger and scoffing and cruel hate, Name haughty, boastful pride, And count the self-seeking and eager greed Of avarice, beside; Then reckon the malice and envy and fret, That linger through the days—And you will know how to reach Wrinkle Town. For these are constant ways.

But why should we follow these roads so drear That lead where sadness broods, When others are open whose ends invite To gladness, happy moods? Now ponder this truth—be the willing steps However cast or led—The face will discover and show their Reflect the paths we tread.—Irvin C. Lambert, in N. W. Christian Advocate.

Have you seen the locomotive as she struggles up the slope, Panting, blowing, shrieking onward, like a traveler spurred by hope, Onward, upward, ever pressing, like a being with a soul? But the power that propels her is a shovelful of coal.

Till, at last, she's reached the summit, then adown the hillside flies, Where another mighty mountain starts its journey to the skies; Now no effort, swiftly downward, gently o'er each grassy knoll, Still she now and then is calling for a shovelful of coal.

So in life we upward journey, up life's troublesome ascent, To the Mecca we are seeking, earnestly our feet are bent; But the journey would be lighter; sooner we would reach the goal, If, as fiercely onward pressing, we would shovel in the coal.

True, some early struggle upward, till they reach the mountain height, Then, perhaps, lie idly waiting where the journey is more light; Till again they reach the bottom, but the fellow on the roll Of the mighty is the fellow who keeps shoveling the coal.—Omaha World-Herald

RHEUM/ISM—CATARRH—DIS EASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air, blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucuous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure and so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Like bad dollars, all counterfeits of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are worthless. The original quickly cures piles, sores and all skin diseases. Howard Gardner.

A MONSTER DEVIL FISH

Destroying its victim, is a type of constipation. The power of this murderous malady is felt on organs and nerves and muscles and brain. There is no health till it's overcome. But Dr. King's New Life Pills are a safe and certain cure. Best in the world for stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Only 25 cents at C. E. Holton's drug store.

For the weakness and prostration following gripe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly.

A POWDER MILL EXPLOSION

Removes everything in sight; so do drastic mineral pills, but both are mighty dangerous. Don't dynamite the delicate machinery of your body with calomel, croton oil or aloes pills, when Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are gentle as a summer breeze, do the work perfectly. Cures headache, constipation. Only 25c. at C. E. Holton's drug store.

The most soothing, healing and antiseptic application ever devised is DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It relieves at once and cures piles, sores, eczema and skin diseases. Beware of imitations. Howard Gardner.

WE ARE STILL TALKING.

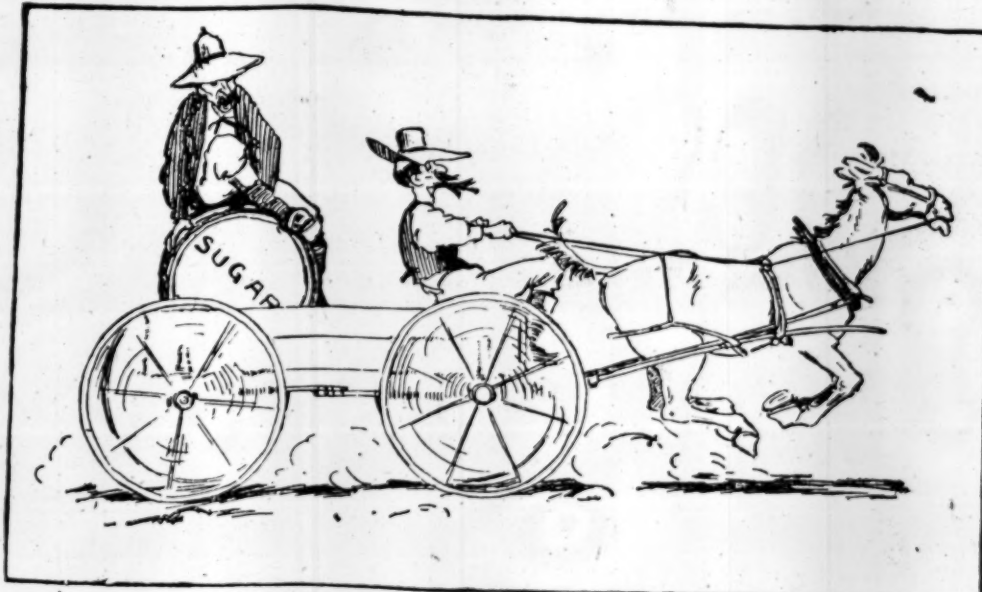

But our at cost prices are doing more for us than all the talk that we can do. Our blanket sale has warmed the people. It is absolutely comfortable just to look in our front show window and see our blanket display—then get inside our store and you will find all kinds of bargains in dress goods, underwear, rainy-day skirt goods, nice warm cassimeres and heavy all-wool skirts. You will also find our stock of silks unbroken, while we can show you a marvelous lot of styles in Ziegler Bros' shoes.

We paid the freight, but you get these goods at actual cost. Johnson & Dorsett.

This store is full and running over with all of the newest and latest designs that have been arriving for the past two weeks. Owing to a decline in the price of raw material entering into the construction of furniture, these new artistic designs can be had for much less money than you can purchase the old designs even at a reduction sale. The extra floor space now in use enables me to offer for your inspection the largest stock of fine furniture that has ever been shown on this market. Don't throw your money away on old goods when you can buy new for less.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Mrs. M. G. Newell, who has been very sick for some time, is no better. Mr. Appleton Staples has been appointed to a position with the American Tobacco Company in New York and will shortly leave for that city.

Mr. B. B. Bouldin has a position with the Greensboro National Bank. Mr. Bouldin is a clever gentleman, and will fill acceptably any position he assumes.

Frank J. Schmer, one of the firm of Schmer & Co., the celebrated piano manufacturers of New York city, was a caller at the ware rooms of John B. Wright of this city today.

Dr. S. B. Turrentine will preach at the State Normal College Sunday night. Prof. G. H. Crowell, of High Point, will fill Mr. Turrentine's pulpit at West Market at that time.

Miss Eliza Jones, sister of Mr. J. W. Jones of this city, died yesterday morning at her home near Siler City. The funeral occurred today and the remains laid to rest at Siler City.

In the case of Golden against the Carolina Benevolent Association, the jury this afternoon brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, who was suing to recover the amount of an insurance policy on her husband's life.

Mr. L. C. Howlett requests all who subscribed, and others who wish to subscribe to the dance to be given at the McAdoo House Friday night to meet Monday night at 8 o'clock sharp in the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Club room.

Mr. Henry Marley, a young man who works at Merritt, Brower & Co.'s had an attack of weakness this morning as an effect of some medicine he had been taking which at one time appeared to seriously endanger his life. He was in the store at the time, and the attack came unexpectedly. Dr. Brooks was quickly called from the drug store of Grissom & Fordham, and after considerable effort, brought the young man around alright.

Miss Castello Tuesday.

The Oberlin (Ohio) News has the following to say of an entertainment given by Miss Castello:

"The entertainment given at Warner Concert Hall last Thursday evening by Miss Bernice Castello was artistic as well as entertaining. Miss Castello has a wonderfully rich and pleasing voice, under perfect control, and especially well adapted for impersonating. Her selections were well made and her interpretations excellent. She was at her best and nearest her audience in 'The Song That Reached His Heart.' In this case she was especially realistic in impersonating the pleading tones of 'Little Charles.' We trust that Miss Castello will, sometime in the future, again visit Oberlin."

Miss Castello will appear here Tuesday evening, the 12th, for the benefit of the K. of P. Lodges. Reserved seats 50c; general admission 35c.

Court-Rests.

At three o'clock this afternoon the Superior Court knocked off work till next Monday morning when it will resume and probably continue through the week. This will make five weeks, and the regular session coming on Monday after next will give the county seven continuous weeks of court.

Monday may not be too late to have your eyes attended to. Drs. Moore can help.

Connaught to Command in India

By Wire to The Telegram.
Allahabad, Feb. 9.—The belief is reiterated by well informed persons here that the Duke of Connaught will be appointed commander-in-chief of the British forces in India.

Naval Station Site Located.

By Wire to The Telegram.
San Francisco, Feb. 9.—Commander Menocal of the construction department of the United States Navy, has arrived here from Manila. He says he has selected an ideal site on Subig Bay, twenty-six miles from Manila, for a naval station. He believes the government will construct a large dry dock and have a naval repairing yard on a gigantic scale.

"Guaranteed quality." Read it on second page.

A WORD OF WARNING

When you buy a piano or organ you want a musical instrument do you not? Then beware of those cheap pianos and organs so extensively advertised. Use your own common sense. If a cheap watch could keep accurate time, there would be no demand for the full jeweled and adjusted movement. If a thirty dollar organ or a $150 piano could be constructed so as to give musical satisfaction and durability instead of being a source of discontent and annoyance, there would be no demand for a more artistic instrument. Kimball Pianos and Organs are sold direct from their large factories at small factory profit. They are fully guaranteed. We shall be glad hear from any one desiring a strictly first-class instrument.
